1. A Mother Crab was watching her son play on the beach. Like all crabs, the Young Crab walked along sideways: he walked to the left, then he walked to the right. Mother Crab saw the lobsters on the beach. The lobsters were walking straight forward. Mother Crab said to her son, "Why do you walk to the left or to the right, my son? It'd be better to walk straight forward." The Young Crab said to his mother, "That is true, dear mother. Show me how to walk straight, and I will follow your example." Mother Crab tried and tried, but she couldn't walk straight forward. She stopped trying, when she understood how silly she had been to tell her son to walk straight forward.
